

August Dubeau | Viola and Music Theory

August DuBeau is a current master's student at Stony Brook University studying viola performance with Lawrence Dutton and Matthew Lipman. As violist of the Harlo Quartet, he participates in the university's Emerson String Quartet Institute with coaches Philip Setzer, Eugene Drucker, Lawrence Dutton, Paul Watkins, and David Finckel. Previously, he received his bachelor's of music degree with a double major in viola performance and music theory at the Cleveland Institute of Music, where he studied with Mark Jackobs. There, he began his specialized study of string quartet repertoire within the Institute's Advanced String Quartet Seminar as violist of the Ilo Quartet. Coached by Si-Yan Li, Philip Setzer, Todd Phillips, and Ilya Kaler, the Ilo Quartet were prize-winners in the 2021 Coltman Chamber Music Competition and the 8th Stockholm International Music Competition.
